Chapter 1 by Aleisha

These are the stories of Fairy Tale Characters the daughters and sons trying to fit the expectations of their parents and still have a life of their own. Feel free to add other characters as well!

Ebony White looked outside. Today was a new day, another day of trying to be perfect. Her mother had raised her to be the perfect princess. The perfect Snow White. Though she wasn't, although on the outside Ebony looks absolutely perfect she is extremely shy.

Her mother than appeared in her bedroom "Ebony, it's time to go to your first day of a new year at high school!" she smiled cheerily.

Ebony forced a smile "yes mother, I'll be down to the carriage in a moment, I just need a moment"

Snow White nodded and walked out of the room Ebony turned to the window. Outside was the citizens of their kingdom, chatting and laughing How she yearned to be like them, not having to go to meeting, or being perfect or ruling a kingdom you don't want.

Ebony sighed and went down the stairs. She waved her mother goodbye. "Good bye dear! Have a great day!" her mother said. "I will!" Ebony answered. A few minutes later she was in her carriage. She cringed as she looked at the silver sign that said "Hillmore High". Hillmore High wasn't a word Ebony wanted to know. It reminded her of the time when she had to lose her friends and probably have no chance of seeing them again. Ebony moaned with grief , just thinking about that. She shook her head and focused on her first day of school. Probably the worst day of my life! Ebony thought. As she walked into the gates of her school, all the hillmore students stoped what there were doing and stared at Ebony.
